

THE WAR IN THE WEST.

Boyd's Station, a place on the line of the Louisville, Lexington and Covington railroad, fifty miles southwest of Cincinnati, was taken possession of by fifteen thousand Confederates on Sunday. The telegraph operator left at noon on the appearance of the advance guard. Gen. Heath, at the head of a Confederate force of thirty thousand, is reported to be at Williams-town, in Grant county, forty miles south of Cincinnati. A Federal force surprised a party of Confederates at Morganfield on Sunday of last week, killing some and taking several prisoners. Wednesday morning, the same troops attacked six hundred Confederates encamped on Gieger Lake, and put them to rout. The Confederates rallied on the opposite side of the lake and opened fire. A severe engagement followed, lasting two hours, but the ammunition of the Federal troops becoming exhausted, they retreated at last. The Federal loss was eight wounded, including the colonel.

Gen. Wallace has been relieved from duty at Cincinnati, and is to repair to Covington, Ky. His duty there will be to organize and brigade troops. The resumption of all lawful business in Cincinnati, except the sale of liquors, is authorized until 4 o'clock in the afternoon daily. All the military organizations of the city are to assemble for drill every afternoon excepting Sunday, and the members of such organizations will hold themselves in readiness to rally at the place of rendezvous at a moment's warning. The organization of all able-bodied citizens into a working corps is to be perfected with the aid of the civil authorities. There was no excitement on Sunday.

A dispatch from Cincinnati briefly announces that Gen. Buell has ordered the city of Nashville to be evacuated.

In his report of the recent operations of his army in falling back to the fortifications in front of Washington, Gen. Pope, it is currently said, accuses Gen. Sigel of cowardice, Gen. Fitz John Porter of refusing to obey orders, and Gens. Franklin and Griffin of intentionally delaying the movements of their several commands, so as to prevent the success of his (Gen. Pope's) operations.

On Saturday, a scouting party from Pleasanton's cavalry brigade, crossed the Potomac in the vicinity of Leesburg, proceeding some ten or twelve miles inland, and came in contact with and captured a small Confederate scouting party.

The steamer Rhode Island, from the Gulf, has arrived at Hampton Roads, and brings intelligence of the death of Paymaster Jos. C. Oliphant, of the St. Lawrence; Acting Assistant Paymaster E. D. Barton, of the Huntsville; Acting Assistant Surgeon Samuel F. Gould, of the same vessel, and Carpenter Jas. A. Kim, of the St. Lawrence—all of yellow fever.

Lord Palmerston, in a recent speech, complimented the U. S. government on the settlement of the Trent difficulty; and Lord Brougham advocated absolute neutrality and non-intervention in American affairs.

A terrific boiler explosion took place Saturday morning at I. M. Singer & Co.'s sewing machine manufactory, in New York, killing three men, and badly scalding a number of others.

The second branch of the Baltimore City Council reduced the amount of bounty to be paid volunteers from $200 to $100.

LATEST FROM FREDERICK.

A gentleman, who left Frederick on Sunday at noon, reports the most perfect quiet and good order as prevailing in the city. There had been no invasion of private rights.

Bradley T. Johnson was in command as provost marshal. His constant declaration was that "We want it to be understood that we are Southern gentlemen, and not marauders."

There was but one regiment in the city, and that was composed principally of Marylanders. Gen. Jackson was not in the city, all the troops there being under the command of Gen. Hill, who occupied the house of Gen. Cooper as his headquarters.

Our informant states that he does not think that the troops that had marched through Frederick exceeded fifteen thousand in number, though they gave it out that they composed merely the advance guard of one hundred and fifty thousand men that were to follow them.

Dr. Jenks, the postmaster, had taken all the mails and government funds in the office, and started with them for Gettysburg.

The whole value of the hospital and other government stores destroyed at Frederick by Marshal Faithful did not exceed $3,000. It consisted principally of old blankets, tents and harness. All the most valuable stores were removed.—Baltimore American.

A STORY ABOUT GENERAL BUTLER.—A story is told concerning Gen. Butler which is not calculated to prove his confidence in the safety of the political element by which he is surrounded.

Some time ago Gen. Butler, finding that it was almost impossible for him to devote to his wife the cares to which she is entitled, resolved to part with her and to send her homeward.—The day of departure arrived, and he went with wife and children to the boat on which they were to embark. Unfortunately the water was high and the boat of difficult access. The plank thrown upon the water between the deck and shore formed an acute angle, and Blondin himself would have found it difficult to maintain his equilibrium upon it. But General Butler, confident that his center of gravity was sufficiently ponderous to secure him against all accidents, ventured bravely upon the steepy road. Hardly had he walked two steps, however, than his feet glided along and down he went, measuring the plank with all his length, and producing at the same time a noise somewhat similar to that of an old kettle. His servants ran to his assistance, and he was soon up again.

When it had been ascertained that the general was unhurt, inquiries were made concerning the sound of metal heard at the time of his fall. It was not long before the mystery was solved. The clothes of the general having been torn in his perilous descent, people saw protruding underneath his coat, one large breastplate, reaching from his neck down to his thighs. This was the object which had produced the noise. It was ascertained afterwards that the general wears this kind of armor since his arrival in New Orleans, and that he never goes out without it.—N. Y. World.

IMPORTANT NEWS FROM EUROPE.—Garibaldi defeated and captured.—The steamer Australasian passed Cape Race yesterday, bringing the intelligence that a battle had taken place between the French troops and Garibaldi's forces, in which the latter were defeated and Garibaldi wounded and taken prisoner. A French paper considers the revolutionary movement in Italy at an end now that the leader is captured.

The order for an immediate Court of Inquiry into the causes of recent events has been countermanded.
